The college life at Livingstone is something that should always be remembered and cherished for these are days and nights that will be with us for the rest of our lives.

FORWARD

Anticipation enters our souls, commanding us to look beyond our limited horizons.
Who can comprehend what lies beneath the surface of our existance, or what the sands of time will bring as they sweep across the pages of our lives?
While reaching for a star until it burts upon reality, we must grasp the unknown; seek the simple as we anticipate the complex. And though what lies ahead may sometimes look bleak and hopeless, we have so many dreams we've yet to find. For your patience, for your wit, for the joy that you have spread into our hearts and all that have known you. You taught us, we have learned and we thank you.

Black college grads are better prepared

By Sally Ann Stewart
USA TODAY

Black colleges do a better job of motivating and preparing black students than integrated schools, according to a new study.

Students at black colleges also gain more intellectually than peers at integrated schools, says Jacqueline Fleming, a New York City psychologist and adjunct professor at Barnard College.

During the past seven years, Fleming studied 2,500 black and 500 white freshmen and seniors at 15 colleges — including Spelman College in Atlanta, Ohio State University in Columbus and the University of Houston.

"Black colleges have so few resources, a lot of them have severe financial difficulties you don't find at white colleges. But the interaction of students and faculty produces the motivation for students to achieve.

"That motivation lasts a lifetime and enables students to successfully compete in the real world," Fleming says.

Her research shows that many black students at mostly-white colleges feel alienated and can't develop mentor relationships with professors.

"The mentor relationship is one of the most important things students get out of college," she says.

Blacks at black colleges also gained more confidence by their senior year than blacks at integrated colleges, Fleming says. This increased confidence makes these students more eager to compete against whites in academics and the business world, she says.

A Historical View Of Hood Theological Seminary

Hood Theological Seminary, as we know it, was conceived of and established as a department, of the "Zion Wesley Institute" in 1879. The Fathers' of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, nurturing the dream of the Reverend James Walker Hood, established and built an institution that would educate the heart as well as the head and hand of black youth.

Joseph Charles Price believed that ". . . Individuals and men of different professions passing mental or moral worth may do great good in this direction, but there is no man among the colored people whose scope of usefulness is so large and duty so apparent and urgent as the Negro Preacher."

In this view the following highlights of activities have resulted in the establishment and building of the Hood Theological Seminary, as drawn from the archives of the Seminary, and its Heritage Hall facility.

In 1904, the General Conference of the A.M.E. Zion Church appropriated $20,000.00 for the construction of the Seminary housing that was to be named after Bishop James Walker Hood.

In 1906, the cornerstone for "Hood Theological Seminary" was set in place. Hood Seminary has been a viable institution for the training of Blacks since 1906. For a brief period of time, owing in part to the difficulties of the Great Depression, the doors of the Seminary were closed. Dr. W.J. Trent found the doors of the Seminary closed on his assumption of the post of President of Livingstone College. During the early years of his administration, Dr. Trent worked, almost at a fever pitch to reopen the doors of the Seminary.

In 1965, after intensive fund raising drive by the A.M.E. Zion Church, Hood Theological Seminary moved to a new building that was constructed on land donated by the late Bishop William Jacob Walls. The William Jacob Walls Center, named after the late Bishop and his widow, was erected on this land at a cost in excess of $465,000. Hood Theological Seminary maintains the original Hood Theological Seminary Facility for campus religious life activities of Livingstone College.

As can be seen from the above chronicle of his history, Hood Theological Seminary is one of America's "grassroots" institutions. Its uniqueness lies in hits history of becoming one of the authentic examples of the Negro/Black man's capacity to create and substain institutions to serve his needs amidst his peculiar circumstances of existence in this country.

Miss Hood Theological Seminary 1984-85

Mary Bell Kendall, is a second year student at Hood Theological Seminary where she serves as class secretary. Mary is presently pastoring the Cedar Hill A.M.E. Zion Church, Ansonville, North Carolina. She is married to Mr. Alonzo Kendall formerly of Greensboro, N.C. They have three children, Alonzo, Jr. 8, Maranda 7 and Catundra 3. Her parents are Mrs. Ruth Bell, and the late Rev. C.M. Bell of Concord, N.C. She is a member of the West Central North Carolina Conference laboring on the Concord District. Mary is very active both in her church work and in her community. She enjoys sewing, traveling, and singing.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF HOOD THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY STUDENT UNION

Hood Theological Seminary was established out of a dream of Bishop James Walker Hood, some one hundred years ago. Today, that dream has grown into a reality, as men and women around the world attend Hood Seminary for leadership skills in the various ministries and vocations of the Christian Church. Hood Seminary understands that its ultimate loyalty is to the Church of Jesus Christ while affirming that its purpose is to serve the particular needs of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church, and all persons committed to the ministries of the Church of Jesus Christ. The avenues along which these efforts are directed are acquisition of knowledge, development of professional skills, personal development in community, and cultivation to commitment.

I believe that the mission of Hood Seminary is summed up in the song written by Micheal Jackson and Lionel Richie, "WE ARE THE WORLD". For there comes a times when we heed a certain call. When the world must come together as one. There people dying, and its time to lend a hand, to life the greatest gift of all.

We can't go on pretending day by day, that someone, somewhere will soon make a change. We are all a part of God's great big family, and the truth, you know Love is all we need. We are the World, we are the Children. We are the ones who can make a brighter day, so let's start giving, so that maybe "one of these days" we'll be one.

MAYBE "ONE OF THESE DAYS"

Maybe "one of these days" nations will learn to compromise without sharing "blood and tears."

Maybe "one of these days" the "rich" will help the poor instead of ignoring their agony and fears.

Maybe "one of these days" all men will walk together and it not be a matter of "class."

Maybe "one of these days" we will not have to worry about natural resources running out.

Maybe "one of these days" all men will stand together whether black, white, yellow or red!

And maybe "one of these days" there will be no starvation — every HUNGRY mouth will be fed.

Maybe one of these days we will "love" each other and turn away from senseless prejudice ways.

"Freedom" is only our "fantasy", until we see each ONE OF THESE DAYS!
